

In the Wink of a Heartbeat

A death row comedy by Wendy Jo Cohen

Dateline: East Shokanawe, PA

Hobbled by unemployment, homelessness, domestic violence, and substance abuse, East Shokanawe has been on hard times ever since Munsee Paints shuttered its factory, and things only got worse when the house at 17 Notawok Street was blown to smithereens with Randi Blauczek inside it. Will the town finally be able to get back on its feet once notorious bomber-murderer Starleigh Squibb is put to death? Or does the key to financial recovery lie with her being exonerated and the town building a global Center for Judicial Reform and Social Justice in her name? And what about an international film festival? They say that can really boost a town's economy... would one go over here?
